Upon further review of the claims, it has been determined that the claims are broader in scope than at first realized, and the following non-final rejection has been applied.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,5,6 and 12-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kondo.

Figures 1-3 show structure as claimed, including an elongate anchor extension comprised of a cable 16 having a cover 18 thereon, a “male seat belt latch tongue” 12 at one end, and a “female seat belt latch receptacle” 13 at the other end. Note that, absent defining structure in the claim, little patentable weight is given to the nomenclature of an element.

Claims 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Harrison.

Figure 4 shows structure as claimed, including a flat elongate strap having a male tongue immovably affixed to one end and a female receptacle immovably affixed at the other end. A cover 16 is disposed over the strap, limiting the flexibility thereof. Note that the term “immovably affixed” has been taken to mean not removable or adjustable relative to the buckle.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Harrison.

The length of the strap is considered a matter of design choice.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Bergman et al, Sano et al, Takada and Tokugawa show various features of the invention.
